Neurodiversity: Celebrating Our Differences

Dyscalculia

ADD/
ADHA

Dyslexia

The project's philosophy is about celebrating differing strengths rather than focusing on deficits, whilst campaigning to make the workplace a fairer place. We want to promote understanding of neurodiversity in the workplace and influence employers to adopt positive policies, procedures and practices.

10 September, 5.30pm,
Purbeck Lounge, BIC

Chaired by Peter Purton, TUC Policy Officer Disability

Hear about groundbreaking research from Heriot-Wat University, personal experiences from neurodiversity champions and the legal impact.

Find out how you could develop a neurodiversity network in your workplace.

What does neurodiversity mean and which neurodiverse conditions might be classed as hidden disabilities in the workplace?

How does being neurodiverse have an impact on people's working lives?

Does it limit access to learning, development & progression?

Would you like to find out what the TSSA Union has done to help support someone who is, or may be neurodiverse in the workplace?

If so, join us for a glass of wine and bite to eat. We look forward to seeing you there!
